

From: Manuel, David - PD
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 11/29/01 2:53pm
Subject: I want to express that I think it's a bad idea to allow Microsoft to

I want to express that I think it's a bad idea to allow Microsoft to distribute free software to educational institutions to partially fulfill their anti-trust settlement terms. Simply put, education is one arena where Microsoft does not hold a monopoly, and allowing them to place software there runs directly contrary to the spirit of restitution. Such placement gives them a greater market share, and would exacerbate the conditions that prompted the anti-trust suit in the first place.

Thanks for the opportunity for input.

David Manuel, EIT, AICP
Senior Planner
713-837-7807
City of Houston
Long-Range Planning Division
Planning & Development Department

Personal E-mail does not necessarily reflect official views of the City of Houston, its representatives, agencies, or officials.